The Exponential
Mindset™

Keynotes, workshops, and consulting to help leaders expand their influence and multiply their impact.

As a Fortune 100 executive for over 30 years, I understand what it's like to lead in a high-pressure, high-performance environment.

I began my career leading only me. Eventually, I was responsible for overseeing global teams and a $20 billion operation. In a season of growth, a pivotal assignment transformed my approach to leadership. It made me responsible for everything – with direct control of nothing.

This drove a series of shifts in my thinking, leading me to develop what I now call The Exponential Mindset™.

While there are a number of tenets of the Exponential Mindset™, the single most catalytic idea is that we multiply our impact when we lead more from identity and influence than lines of command and control.

This mindset also helped me recognize that leaders don't have to choose between work and family, their boss and their team, or even customers versus the company.

Today, I help organizations benefit from the accelerated performance, stronger teams, and more effective leaders this mindset produces.
